NEW SWIMMING POOL ABOUT READY TO OPEN FOR SEASON

During the past week the cement swimming pool has been cleaned out and much mud stones and other rubbish removed. The work being done under the supervision of Bob Brown, who is an untiring worker. During the winter several cracks developed in the cement walls. They were tarred and patched up during the cleanup campaign. Sunday morning the water level was turned into the pool and several hours later the tank was filled.

On Monday under the supervision of Ed Elliott, the bungalow purchased sometime ago from Asahi Sava and located some ten miles north west of town was moved to the site of the swimming pool. This building will be renovated and fixed up as a dressing room for bathers.

A lot of work yet remains to be done such as building a wading pool for the little folks, cement walls and a host of innumerable small jobs. When all is finished Gleichen will have a swimming pool we can well be proud of.

THE POLITICAL PARTIES AND THE TARIFF

It seems rather sad to me, as I look over the published platform of the various political parties, to notice that while they stress the vital importance to Canada of expanding its exports, none of them mentions the only manner in which this can be brought about, which is by the sharp lowering, but not the complete abolition, of Canadian tariffs which hinder, curtail and strangle the importation of foreign goods and commodities into Canada, and so automatically hinder and strangle the exportation of our agricultural and other products. The redistribution of wealth proposed by some, the granting of credits and subsidies and guarantees the setting up of importation boards, and even the concluding of trade agreements with other countries, entirely fail to meet the issue.

The percentage of the working people of Canada who are engaged in industries which could not function unless they have high tariff protection, is but a small part of all workers of Canada. To maintain a small group of people in industries for which Canada is not suitable, imposes a most serious and costly burden on the rest of the people, by means of course, of curtailing the exports of all products, goods and commodities which Canada produces. It is her only way of life. H. I. Strange, in World of Wheat.

WOOD IS A WEAPON, TOO

From Canada's 770,000 square miles of productive forests, 80,000 lumberjacks fell the trees that they their way in some form or other into almost every war product. Canada turns out. Here are some of the war goods that have come from Canada's forests, Mosquito bombers, motor torpedo boats, invasion barges, armoured cars, machine gun drums, sponges, antitoxin, insulation, gas mask parts, powder bags, hospital bandages, surgical dressings, plastic self-sealing gas tanks, boxes, barrels and gunneting. Essential to the task of getting war materials into the hands where it is needed are the paper and wood containers which carry small arms ammunition, gun barrels, articles of resistance, portable planes, food and medical supplies.

CANADA CARRIES ON WAR PRODUCTION

Canada's war job is by no means done. Aircraft and shipbuilding factories will continue their high rate of deliveries indefinitely, the only major change being the types of craft. Production of trainer planes will be reduced for instance, and replaced by production of the new combat aircraft. Railway equipment will be turned out at even higher rate. Outbacks will occur in production of gun and small arms ammunition, chemicals and explosives and armoured vehicles. The automotive industry will cut down on war production, but the factories will continue to be fully engaged on civilian as well as military production. In 1945, however, the production will include 100,000 military trucks, 25,000 trucks for UNRRA, and 23,000 trucks for essential civilian needs.

Just four more days until the Dominion elections. And what a relief to have it over. Whew!

As the federal election battle draws into its final week, all parties are bringing their big guns to bear on their opponents. This blasting process is exciting and instructive for the voters, but a bit hard on the emperors and dignities of the candidates. Indeed temper and dignity are now slightly frayed and bedraggled.

Consumers who lose their ration books could save unnecessary trouble to both themselves and the ration office if they took a few prior precautions. Simply fill in the space provided for a address and telephone number. This will facilitate easy return to consumers by the ration board where stray ration books must be taken. It is a criminal offence to use ration books which do not belong to a consumer of the same household, but ration books which do not carry the additional details of address and telephone number are more open to abuse if they fall into wrong hands.

To get maximum service from their dies this summer, truck and motor car drivers are warned by the Department of Munitions and Supply to check and correct inflations at regular intervals. This is especially important with the approach of hot summer weather, when the tread and casing become much better in use and are thus more vulnerable to abuse. The strength of the casing is greatly reduced when continuously overheated and even a short period of overheating may cause a blow out. Car owners who do not have proper care of their tires will only aggravate the tire shortage.

Garry Mahoney's class gave him a surprise party on Monday evening.

Under new army sports program recreational shooting clubs are opening in every military district in Canada. An Infantry training course at Shilo, Man. now has more than 1,000 members. The Camp Borden course has ordered 20,000 targets for its members.

V-3, the Germans' third vengeance weapon was a rocket-boosted with a range of many thousands of miles—a big enough range to carry it across the Atlantic. said John A. A program of education and vocational training has been planned for personnel in overseas units, both in Europe and the United Kingdom. Every man will be eligible to take part time courses, and those who can be released can take full time work at a Kitchi College, where intensive instruction will be given in all academic subjects up to second year university. There will be refresher courses for teachers, and a variety of other courses including agriculture, forestry and commercial training. One of the whole scheme is the compulsory course in "re-orientation." This consists of a series of studies in citizenship designed to bridge the gap between the years of military life and the civilian world.

Up to the end of the European war, Canada has suffered a total of 102,545 casualties. Of these 37,300 were dead, 55,000 wounded, 3,700 missing, and 883 prisoners of interned. Total Canadian casualties in the last war up to February, 1921, were 210,000 of all veterans. It is the very basis of the Rehabilitation Policies of the Progressive Conservative Party. No veteran will be discharged against his will until he is assured of a decent livelihood.

"Platitudes will not fill empty stomachs," declares John Bracken, "nor generalities provide jobs for those who have fought, nor worthy institutions employ them. It is the load of the widows and children whose husbands and fathers gave life itself that we must live in peace and security."

Throughout the war, Canadian service men and women have had their fill of platitudes and generalities. Let our veterans now ask themselves this question. Does the spirit of political partnership which the King Government has consistently manifested in time of war, offer any assurance of a square deal for veterans in time of peace? Does the inglorious manpower policy which split Canada apart reflect the right spirit? Remember in war, as in peace, political parties are infallibly indicate party principles.

It is significant that more than half of the Progressive Conservative candidates are service and ex-service men. No other party can even approach this record. These men know that no other party has such realistic and comprehensive plans for rehabilitation. They know that the Progressive Conservative Party is the service men's party.

They know that John Bracken, father of three sons on active service, understands the problems, the hopes and the fears of veterans. They say, with John Bracken "The cost of winning the war and the cost of re-establishing those who fought in it is one and indivisible. In the plainest words at my command, I say to you that nothing short of full-time gainful employment for every man and woman who has worn the Canadian uniform will be acceptable. Every man and woman must be given an opportunity to earn a good living. If existing enterprises cannot do this, the State must, and will."

These service and ex-service candidates, with John Bracken, pledge themselves that, under no circumstances, will existing benefits to veterans be lessened. On the contrary, they will be increased and extended. They with John Bracken, pledge themselves to revise an out-moded pensions act, to humanize its administration, to eliminate red tape and innumerable delays. Pension rates will be reviewed at once and increased to bring them in line with higher living costs. Under a Progressive Conservative government, recorded condition of personnel on enlistment will be accepted as sufficient proof in determining disability pension. The veteran will be entitled to the benefit of the doubt. The "first in, first out" principle will be followed on demobilization—with a job at decent pay assured to a veteran when he returns to "civilian" streets. In the words of our leader, we of the Progressive Conservative Party, "accept the challenge to demonstrate to you who fought that you shall not be handicapped in days of peace because you responded to the nation's call in days of war."

JOBS ASSURED BEFORE DEMOBILIZATION

A Square Deal for Veterans Assured by Progressive Conservatives

The very first clause of the Progressive Conservative plans for the re-establishment of Veterans, adopted at the National Convention of December, 1942, is as follows:—

DEMOBILIZATION

In carrying out the demobilization of Canada's Armed Forces the primary consideration should be the interest of those who have served. Demobilization should be based on the principle that members of the Armed Forces should not be discharged until their economic security is assured by placement in gainful employment or by assisted training and education to that end.

Here, in this simple statement of progressive, realistic policy is the only true solution of the fundamental problem by which every ex-service man and woman is faced. It is the only assurance of a square deal for all veterans. It is the very basis of the Rehabilitation Policies of the Progressive Conservative Party. No veteran will be discharged against his will until he is assured of a decent livelihood.

"Platitudes will not fill empty stomachs," declares John Bracken, "nor generalities provide jobs for those who have fought, nor worthy institutions employ them. It is the load of the widows and children whose husbands and fathers gave life itself that we must live in peace and security."

Danger Of Inflation

THROUGHOUT THE EUROPEAN WAR, the people of Canada were constantly warned of the danger of inflation. With the co-operation of the public, however, price controls, wage ceilings and anti-inflation measures have been carried out, with the result that the cost of living here has risen very little in comparison with that of many other countries. Had living costs gone up to the extent often experienced in time of war, the people at home would have had a much more difficult time, and the war effort as a whole would no doubt have suffered. The inconveniences of attempting to keep wages and prices stabilized have been many, but the people have appeared to realize that these inconveniences are small, compared to the economic chaos which accompanies inflation.

Pacific War May Be Long

Since the Canadian Army and a large part of the Navy and Air Force have for over five years been in service in Europe, the end of hostilities there has meant that, for a time at least, the strain and anxiety of war has been eased for many people here. The gradual conversion of some war industries to the production of civilian goods has added to the feeling that we are entering upon a much less critical phase of hostilities. There is danger, however, in failing to realize that our forces will soon be involved in the war in the Pacific and that there is no indication now that the struggle there may not go on for some time. It must also be realized, that as long as we are at war, there is danger of the evil which accompany it, and that one of these evils is inflation. Lack of vigilance now would undo all that has been accomplished since 1939, and would in addition, destroy our opportunities for stability in the reconstruction period.

Public Support Must Continue

Just as it is necessary during the time that the armed forces are being demobilized and war industries converted to peacetime production. The first year and a half following World War I saw a rapid rise of prices and it is believed that there is danger of the same thing happening when this war ends if the people fail to support price controls and other precautions against inflation. Finance Minister Aulay, in a statement on this subject said, "Sharply rising prices in the demobilization and reconversion period would undoubtedly be followed by inflation and serious unemployment afterwards." Canada experienced a long period of unemployment and depression shortly before the war, and there is no one who would wish to see these conditions return. Public resistance in spending, and co-operation in maintaining stability of wages and prices even after the war is ended, will be one important factor making for security in the future.

HOW YOU CAN GET QUICK RELIEF FROM SORE, PAINFUL PILES

Most people seem to think the only way to relieve hemorrhoids is by local treatment. Local treatment, however, gives temporary relief, but does not get to the cause of your piles. No lasting freedom from hemorrhoids can be obtained until the cause of the trouble is corrected. Hemorrhoids are due to internal causes as the blood supply to the rectum is disturbed. Internally with a medicine called Hem-Hold is the only way to get the cause of the trouble corrected. Hem-Hold is a formula that has been used for over 40 years by thousands of men and women. It is a highly concentrated, powerful, and pleasant to use. This device, through its concentrated formula directs its medicinal action to the rectum, the place where the trouble is. Hem-Hold promotes free, easy and comfortable bowel movements, quickly relieves itching, irritation and soreness and stimulates better blood circulation in the lower bowel. With good blood circulation in the rectum, the cause of your piles is removed. Piles go away. Hem-Hold promotes free, easy and comfortable bowel movements, quickly relieves itching, irritation and soreness and stimulates better blood circulation in the lower bowel. With good blood circulation in the rectum, the cause of your piles is removed.

Well Fed

Canada Has Least Reason To Complain About Food Shortage. What we ought all to remember is that, except for butter and sugar, Canada is now better fed than ever before. Our production of food has increased enormously during the war, in spite of labor and other shortages, and although much of our surplus has been exported, quite enough food is left here to meet all reasonable requirements. Of all the world's countries, Canada has at this moment probably the least reason to complain about its food position—Brookville Recorder and Times.

Just Another Citizen

Princess Juliana Was Thoroughly Democratic Visitor In Canada. Princess Juliana, the heir apparent to the throne of the House of Orange who has now returned to her people freed at last from the Nazi yoke, was a most kindly, friendly and thoroughly democratic visitor in Canada. She lived quietly and simply at her home in Rockfield, a residential suburb of the capital. At any time she might be seen walking headed along its winding streets with friends, usually her nephews or with her children. She put her foot down on the idea of sending her two daughters to a private school. When she took them to the public school she told the headmistress not to "tell stories about fairy princesses or any kind like that." Her children were to be treated exactly the same as anybody else. They were to mix with all the other children and become their friends. And so they have. Princess Juliana seemed to like the informality of her life here. In her own home when servants were hard to get she helped to do the housework and frequently did the cooking for the family, according to a recent story written by Morris McDougall. She was an active voluntary worker at the Supermarket Shop, which is run by ladies of Ottawa for the benefit of the Red Cross. She has been just "Juliana," at her own insistence to her friends of the shop whom she has helped eagerly, unostentatiously, and energetically. With her heart full of the needs of her country she always had her eyes open for anything sold in the shop that might be of value to her people. "I want to buy that overcoat," she would say. "It is a long one and the men in my country are tall, you know," and the coat would be added to the large collection of goods that she prepared for the day when they could be delivered.

The Japanese have a good amount of land mines but aren't nearly the masters of their employment that the Germans proved themselves in Europe. Capt. L. B. The Japanese have effective standard mines but conceal them poorly or often use grenades, shells, bombs or torpedoes instead. They don't use them with any kind of thoroughness.

Olympic Runner From Canada Finds Photo Of Himself In Germany.

Dr. Joe Goebels has admittedly produced a few surprises in his time but for "Mush" Limon, 30, of Vancouver, a shell-shattered hero near the defeated doctor's Gladbach (Germany) estate takes the spotlight. Curiously prompted the former city printer and Olympic runner to wander into the ruins.

Of the once expensive furnishings only a small table remained intact. And on that table the amazed immigrant noticed a framed picture. Goggle-eyed, he took another look. It was a picture of himself, accepting the baton from Phil Edwards in the Olympic relay. The photo was taken in Berlin in 1936.

Limon has it now—his most cherished souvenir of the war.

Phyl: "What did your husband think about that expensive new hat you bought last week?"
Flo: "He just raved about it!"

"What was it you wanted to tell me?" asked the boy in furrough.
"Oh," said the girl, "it was just that mother last night asked me to ask you if you wanted to ask my father anything; he's going out of town tomorrow."

Wife—"How can we estimate our cost of living?"
Husband—"That's simple; take our income and add 30 per cent."

After giving the private a dressing down for being so late in returning with the supplies, the sergeant demanded, "Okay, let's hear how it happened, Miller."

"Well, I picked up a chaplain along the road," explained the weebone rookie, "and from then on the mice couldn't understand a word I said."

First Shopper—"Why are you racing around on a hot day like this?"
Second Shopper—"I'm trying to get something for my husband."

First Shopper—"Have you had any offers?"
"All men who are fond of music, two paces forward!" bawled the top sergeant.

When half a dozen ears had stepped forward, with visions of getting free tickets to a concert, the sergeant added: "O.K., you six mugs—come along, we've gotta plans to make."

The weary father was marching up and down at 1 a.m. with a wailing infant in his arms, when there came a knock on the door. It was the tenant from below, carrying a pair of new shoes.

A man running after a tramcar, passed to the conductor, "How much to the station from here?"
"Twopence," replied the conductor.

The man continued to run, and having covered another stretch, inquired breathlessly of the conductor: "How much now?"
"Threepence," retorted the conductor, "You're running the wrong way."

"Do you think our new neighbors are desirable people?" asked the man of the house.
"Oh, yes," replied the wife, "I watched them unload their belongings. They have a lawn mower and their own garden tools."

Merchandise Junked Before War Selling Well In Paris Shops.

The big department stores of Paris, which were showing deficits year after year before the war, have experienced a sudden prosperity. The Bon Marche, for instance, showed a loss of 21,000,000 francs in 1938 but had a profit of 23,000,000 in 1944. The stores are now selling out at a good profit all the broken, outmoded, and rejected merchandise which they junked in the warehouse before the war.

CUT BACK OVERGROWN AND TOP-HEAVY CARAGANA

Experimental farms notes: The treatment of cutting back overgrown and top heavy caragana may be applied to several types of Caragana plantings. The practice is recommended in preference to removing established, unsightly plants and replacing them with young seedlings if the aim is simply to improve the appearance and form hedges or individual bushes. Nursery stations know from experience that removal of established caragana hedges or individual plants and their numerous roots involves a great deal of time and labor.

Another important feature of this treatment of caragana is the rapid recovery of the plants which is shown by the production of many new vigorous, yet fine textured shoots before the growing season has advanced far. Pruning for the development of specific height and width may, therefore, begin during the same year that cutting back is practised.

For which plants and under what circumstances is this treatment recommended and desirable? First, hedges which have been trimmed to the same height for five or more years will benefit from it. Such hedges as a rule produce weak, stunted growth, often barely enough to cover up and hide the older and thicker main stems. These main stems become too stiff to permit easy trimming. Secondly, uprumped hedges and plants around fifteen years old will usually become top heavy and large stems are frequently blown over the ground. Hedges and plants of this type spread over and shade a wide area, and difficulty is experienced keeping their margins cultivated or growing anything else near them.

If the loss for a short time of shelter provided by them will not be serious, top heavy caragana hedges can with safety be cut back to within a few inches of the ground. The same treatment may be given to individual plants. Within a short time new shoots will appear from latent buds along the entire length of most stubs or cut back branches. Stubs of dead branches or branches which have fallen over should be completely removed because no new shoots can be expected to develop on them.

For cutting back caragana stems a sharp pruning saw should be used for those over an inch in diameter. Smaller stems may be cut back with strong lopping shears.

JUST PLAIN SENSE!

The Canadian people have made a magnificent contribution to the common victory in Europe.

The Liberal administration can say with honesty and justice:

This is the Government which has directed Canada's war effort at home and abroad.

This is the Government which during the war worked out a program of full employment and social reform.

These things are now a matter of record and of common knowledge.

On the basis of its record the choice of Prime Minister King's party to form the next Government of Canada is a matter of just plain sense!

"Let us, as Canadians, resolve to put aside sectionalism and class hatred; let us renounce the politics of expedience and the fruitless game of playing off one group against another; let us require of the Government that it harmonize all the various elements of the community and join them into a vigorous, co-operative society for the betterment of all."

John Bracken

We believe that the one essential of all national progress is national unity. A United Canada is the firm foundation on which all the far-reaching Progressive Conservative plans for post-war reconstruction are enduringly based. We are determined to achieve that unity.

THE AGE OF PLENTY IS AT OUR DOOR—if we will but unite and co-operate to make it a reality for every one of our fellow citizens. BUT...

CANADA HAS BEEN SPLIT APART

In time of war, Canadians "reaped the whirlwind" brought about by the King Government's manpower policies—policies that for 25 years have been fostering division and disunity. These policies now challenge every fair-minded Canadian. That challenge—now that V-E Day has come and gone—is the first to be faced if Canadians are to assure the unity and prosperity of this nation.

TO-DAY, THE QUESTION IS: Shall political expediency be perpetuated?

Shall the "biggest hoax ever perpetrated on a nation" be permitted, in time of peace, to embroil Canada in new inequities, new partisan squabbles, new divisions and disunities?

OR—do YOU agree with John Bracken who bluntly states that "to give political considerations priority over the nation's interest is intolerable and unforgivable"?

CANADA FACES THE ISSUE

To-day, Canada's heritage of national disunity is too evident, too real, to be ignored. The grave crisis of war, which proverbially unites a nation, has been used as a political instrument to accentuate and inflame differences found in every human family... fostering disunity, in this our country, to serve party purposes. The political self-seeking of the King Government's "Divide and Rule" policy has exacted a toll in sacrifice and suffering to be shared by generations to come.

UNITE—CO-OPERATE—PROSPER

Long ago, John Bracken expressed the great objective of the Progressive Conservatives. In his own words, we are setting out "to regain the unity that has been lost". Unity—Co-operation—these are the foundations of our new, progressive conception of National Prosperity in which all Canadians shall share.

WE STAND FOR—

National Unity... NOT Piecemeal Politics seeking Political Advancement through National Disunity.

Co-operation... NOT Class Hatred, Dictatorship and Bureaucratic Tyranny.

WE BELIEVE—

Sectionalism must come to an end, subject to the recognized rights of minorities.

Everyone, regardless of racial origin, must be regarded as a Canadian, sharing equally the rights and obligations of Canadian citizenship.

WE DEMAND—

In War, equality of service and sacrifice.

In Peace, equality of opportunity for all.

One standard of citizenship.

dances, etc. Thus, in a nation wide appeal for Britain's sake during June 9th to 15th, Kinsmen will seek necessary money to send Britain the milk that is needed now more than ever—now that countries cry for food.

While the BBC announces from England a cut in the ration of powdered milk and rice, German civilians have been glomting to find out that even in the last few days of war for Germany, England has had only one half as much food and drink as these enemies of freedom have enjoyed. Of course, the British ration was more severely than our enemies. Her rationing restrictions continue. For example we now read of "one and two-pence worth of meat, two ounces of butter, two ounces of tea—and the two pints of milk a week."

It is true that, with the splendid co-operation and response of Canadians, Kinsmen Clubs have shipped 28,247,380 quarts of milk for Britain and have so contributed very substantially in helping to meet wartime deficiencies in the diet of British youngsters. The Kinsmen rightly feel that they must "finish the job"—that they must continue to meet the need of these children in England, Scotland and Wales. Milk-for-Britain Week, 1945—enthusiastically supported as it will be—may, however, prove a climax of Kinsmen effort of a job well done.

During the early days of Canadian fisheries, Nova Scotia was first among the provinces. This rank is now held by British Columbia, which produces 50.7 percent of the country's total supply.

The Canadian government has signed an agreement with the government of Czechoslovakia under which the former will lend $15,000, 000 for the purchase in Canada of supplies for that country.

SHORT STORY—

Three's A Crowd

—By—
HENRY W. ATTHERTON

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Walter Williams, old man Blain's secretary, wasn't exactly happy. The glare of the sun on the water hurt his eyes. He took off his glasses and squinted at the three people in the stern of the cabin cruiser.

Elain Blain, her father and Dean seemed unaware of him as the craft glided smoothly along. Walter had to admit the young boat salesman was handsome. The deeply tanned face showed up well above the white pullover sweater. The powerful jaw and snapping black eyes gave him away, though.

When they had anchored off Deer Island Mr. Blain selected the strongest rod and reel. "I won't need any help, Dean," he said, giving the rod a powerful swing toward the reef. "I was fishing before you learned to talk."

"Fine. You'll have plenty of action in a few minutes," promised Dean. "I'd keep the line a little tighter, though. They hit plenty hard, and you don't want to lose the first one."

"I thought you said there were lots of fish here," Blain grumbled, and cast again.

"There are, but you don't keep your line in long enough when you thing to find it," answered Dean sharply.

The president of the Sun Oil Company slowly turned a brick red. "What'd you say, young man?" he spat. And then his line sang as it sped through the water. He gave a sharp pull, and the rod bent double.

"Loosen up! Let him have more line," yelled Dean.

The old man was too busy to answer. Anxiously he watched the reel spin, and felt the heave. The fish turned, and he had to start winding in a hurry. Mr. Blain fought gamely for ten minutes, sweat pouring from his face. "No dum fish is worth it," he groaned, and braced himself on the rail of the boat.

"You're making it hard work. If you'd relax, and do as I say you wouldn't be at it in."

"Who said I was tired?" shouted the old man. "I'll land him if it takes a week."

Walter Williams gave Elain a knowing glance. "The manager of the boat company told me they don't often send Dean on fishing parties," he began. "Said he is all right at speed, but has a nasty temper. I'm sorry we asked him to come with us."

"I think it's fine," Elain laughed easily. "Dad hasn't had anyone tell him what to do in years."

"Your father doesn't like it," replied Walter. "He wants to buy a boat so he can entertain the firm's customers. I suppose it'll be up to me to find another one," he added.

More Treasure

Was Uncovered On Crag High In

Austrian Alps
The state treasure of Hungary, including the total gold reserve behind all Hungarian currency in circulation, was uncovered recently by the U.S. 82nd Infantry division on a rocky, pine-covered crag high in the Austrian Alps.

The treasure trove, hidden at the ancient mountain village of Spital Am Pyhrn, was unearthed by Hungarian-born Sgt. William J. DeHuser, Chicago.

It included 4,000,000 pengos ($130,000,000 at the present rate of exchange), 28,000 kilograms of gold bullion worth $50,000,000, complete sets of Hungarian bank note plates for printing all Hungarian currency and other wealth representing most of the capital interest and individual deposits of Hungary brought from Budapest before the Russians captured that city.

Also in the mountain-top chapel cellar were more than 1,000,000 reichsmarks, $158,000 in American currency, six cases of priceless Hungarian art treasures, including historical 14th century illuminated manuscripts belonging to the ancient Magyar kings, and 20 cases containing jewels and other valuable objects the property of the royal Hungarian court.

This wealth in money, art and jewels was watched over by the president of the Royal Bank of Hungary and some 500 financial experts, clerks, bookkeepers and other employees, guarded by 200 picked Hungarian gendarmes.

Allied security headquarters said gendarmes tried to remove the treasure shortly before the arrival of the 80th division.

But a patriot Hungarian stalled on the job and deliberately misled the Allies and vital records to the sabotage the German attempt at plunder. When the Americans arrested the Germans fed in panic.

Children With Defective Vision Well

Looked After In Chicago
Children with defective vision are keeping pace with eagle-eyed youngsters in Chicago's public schools.

Children whose sight has deteriorated to the danger point are put in special sight-saving rooms. There they study with a minimum of eye strain, and learn how to conserve or improve their vision.

Everything in these rooms seems green. The walls are painted seafoam green and light floods through huge, studio-sized windows. Movable desks are shifted about so the light always comes from the student's left shoulders. Adjustable desk tops are fixed at each pupil's reading range. Blackboards are soft green, yellow chalk is an inch thick and writing paper is buff colored. Books are set in large, 24-point type and wall maps are big, simple, heavily lined.

Typical of the departments set up, within various regulation elementary and high schools are two rooms at the Bell School. In one are lots of the first through fourth grades. Some have their strong eyes covered with a patch. Each uses, and thus strengthens, the weak eye.

In the other room are older boys and girls. Using the touch system, they poke out their writing lessons on typewriters equipped with over-size letters. When their eyes tire, they rest.

Their condition is checked and rechecked. Of the 337 scholars placed in the special rooms, but they recite in their regular class rooms. They also eat and play with their normal schoolmates.

For sometime past J. E. Nicholas and his helpers have been busily engaged trying to find leaks in the water mains near the Bar Cafe. Where the water pipes have been exposed there are many springs and it is difficult to know if water comes from pipe leaks or springs. Most people think of a farm as a quiet, safe place compared to the city. Noisy factories shops or mills seem much more dangerous than a wheat field or a quiet farm home, but accidents take the lives of more farm workers than are killed in any other industry. One may wonder why this toll is so great. The majority of farmers and agricultural leaders have done very little about accident prevention. As a result a terrific toll of farm accidents has been piled up. The records indicate that, if you work in agriculture, your chance of an accidental death is over twice as great as when you work in either the manufacturing or the trade and service industries, about 50 per cent of the fatal and non-fatal farm accidents are the result of the careless operation of tractors. Falls are another cause of farm accidents—falls in stairways, barns, etc. Other hazards are the use of motor fuels, explosives and electricity also can be a death trap if used the wrong way. B. Stephenson, agricultural engineer for the Alberta Department of Agriculture stresses the importance of simplification of farm work in the prevention of accidents. Easier ways of doing work contribute to safety because they reduce fatigue. An overworked farmer doesn't have time to think, and if he does not think, accidents are bound to happen. The man who gets things done is the man who places safety first.

It looks as if the shortage of school teachers is letting up. The Department of Labor has "unfroze" them, and next year they will not require special permits to leave their jobs.
